Why the Bear Eats Crickets.

An Indian tradition says that when the fat bears get ready to crawl away to their dens in crevices of ledges and under the trunks of big trees which have blown down, they go and scratch open several ant nests and lap up the busy insects-sand and all-for the purpose of having something in their stomachs to keep them warm all winter, after which they capture and eat two dozens of fat crickets.

The purpose of taking crickets for dessert is claimed to be due to the effects which the insects have upon the fur of the animals. We are told that there is nothing like the bodies of crickets eaten raw for thickening up and giving lustre to fur on hair. After taking its cricket capsules, the bear hides away and does not show itself again until the next spring.

During the dark and cold months the medicinal and tonic qualities of the insects are absorbed into the torpid circulation of the bear, resulting in the flevelopment of a very thick coating of fur, which shines with a glossy and almost satiny black when the animal comes out in the spring. The Indians may that because of their eating crickets the spring pelt of a bear is worth nearly fifty per cent. more than it is at any other time of the year.-Ban-

The Bishop and the Waffles.

The late Bishop Dudley, of Kentucky, was wont to relate with much relish an interesting experience which he once had in connection with waffles. At a fine old Virginia homestead where he was a frequent guest the waffles were always remarkably good.

One morning, as breakfast drew near on end, the tidy little linen coated negro boy who served at table approached Bishop Dudley and asked in a low voice:

"Bishop, won't y' have 'n'er waffle?" "Yes," said the genial Bishop, "I be-Leve I will." "Dey ain' no mo'," then said the nice little colored boy. "Well," exclaimed the surprised rev-

MANY THOUSANDS PRESENT

Speakers of Prominence Lift Their Voices in Protest Against the Alleged Fraudulent Re-Election of Mayor McClellan -Latest Returns From Ohio Show Herrick Only Was Beaten.

New York City.-More than 5000 persons gathered in Durland's Riding Academy to protest against alleged Election Day frauds and to demand a recount of the vote in behalf of Will-

Many thousands more, unable to get inside, surged about the building, marched and counter-marched through the streets, denounced Mayor McClellan and Charles F. Murphy, and declared that W. R. Hearst would be sworn in as Mayor on January 1.

Mr. Hearst was not there, but every mention of his name evoked cheers. Speakers and audience referred to him as "the next Mayor of New York," and hats, canes and newspapers were thrown into the air at the reading of a letter from Mr. Hearst declaring that he had been honestly elected Mayor of the city.

William M. Ivins, the defeated Republican candidate, had been invited to preside, but he sent a letter of regret. He counselled the utmost coolness and deliberation,, and reminded the audience that the fullest reliance could be placed in the courts to do justice.

On the stage were John Ford, candidate for Controller on Mr. Hearst's ticket, and J. G. Phelps Stokes, candidate for President of the Board of Aldermen, who with his young wife was cheered, but neither of the candidates spoke.

Bird S. Coler, one of the successful candidates on the Hearst ticket, did speak, however. Mr. Coler told his auditors that within the next few days they would be startled by the exposure of a high city official who, he said, paid out the money which was used for bribing voters on Election Day. He declared that the facts were known.

Alexander S. Bacon, one of Mr. Hearst's counsel, another of the speakers, declared that the stain of slavery had been wiped out by the blood of "And." he our American heroes. shouted, "we will wipe out the stain from our city flag with blood, if necessary-yes, our blood, if necessary. The audience roared when he declared that the American people would rise and crush every bone in the body of the bosses.

The meeting was held under the auspices of the Citizens' Protective League, an organization of which but little seemed to be known.

Resolutions were adopted providing for the appointment of a committee of seventy citizens by Chairman Holt to collect evidence and prosecute the frauds committed on Election Day

Five thousand persons took part in the outside demonstration. The Hearst advisers hope that the fight for a recount will be on before the courts this week, and declare that if mandamuses are denied by the Supreme Court an appeal will at once be taken and that the matter will be carried to the court of last resort if necessary.

YORKERS PROTEST MURDERED HIS FAMILY

Dr. C. C. Haugh, of Dayton, Ohio Accused of Awful Crime.

Said to Have Killed His Father, Mother and Brother-Was a "Drug Fiend,"

Dayton, Ohio .- Dr. Oliver C. Haugh, who is in jail here charged with the murder of his mother, father and brother, will probably be called to answer for a series of crimes.

Being in bad health and separated from his wife, Dr. Haugh was living with his parents, eight miles from Neighbors saw the Haugh home in flames the other day. When they reached the house they found Dr. Haugh in the yard, having dragged himself out, he said, just in time to save his life. His father, mother and brother were burned to death.

The fire occurred about 1 o'clock in the morning. Dr. Haugh's account of the affair was incoherent, and the Coroner, after an investigation, arrested the physician.

Dr. Haugh is a "drug fiend," and has often been under treatment for the morphine habit. It is stated that when anable to procure the drug his cravings have driven him into a frenzy, in which he has been violent, and on recovering from the attack he has retained no memory of his acts.

It is now charged that Dr. Haugh poisoned his relatives and then set fire to the house. His burns are not serious, and it is known that a few days before the fire he had obtained from Cleveland a considerable quantity of poisonous drug.

It has been discovered since his arrest that while practicing in Lima. Ohio, last year Dr. Haugh was attentive to Mrs. Mary Toohey, who died mysteriously last April. Her brother is said to have accused Haugh of retaining unlawful possession of some of the woman's jewelry.

It is asserted that a woman with whom Dr. Haugh was living in Toledo died suddenly and mysteriously and that afterward he went to Chicago, Ill., where he married a woman named Patterson, who died under circum stances that suggested poisoning. Dr. Haugh contracted the morphine habit while a clerk in a drug store here fifteen years ago. He graduated from Louisville Medical College in 1892.

Dr. Haugh married Anna Eckley, of this city, daughter of a prominent citizen. She entered suit for divorce some time ago, alleging neglect, cruelty and threats of violence toward herself and his parents.

Dr. Haugh has been in a seemingly dazed condition since his arrest, indif-ferent to the death of his relatives or the charges pending against him. His only desire is for the daily dose of morphine allowed him. The prisoner was arraigned before Magistrate Terry on the charge of murdering his father and brother. He was remanded to jail to await the action of the Grand Jury.

FEVER DEATH IN CUBA.

Mosquitoes From New Orleans Es-Caped From Packing Cases.

Havana, Cuba .- The case of H. V. Chilvers, the New Orleans electrician who was taken to the Las Animas fever hospital, was diagnosed as yellow fever. The Spaniard who was stricken and isolated in the Clerks' Hospital, died there. There are now two cases of yellow fever in the Las Animas Hospital, and one suspect, a Spanish woman, who was placed under observation at night. Permission has been received from the Health authorities at New York City to ship the body of A. . Outwater, who died of yellow fever, to his former home at Passaic, N. J. The slight development of the so-called secondary cases has encouraged the belief of the rellow fever experts that there will not be much of a spread of the infection.

It has developed that the opening of some cases of electrical apparatus from New Orleans, La., which were con-signed to a firm in the Payret Theatre building, liberated many mosquitoes. The first person to be attacked by vellow fever was a member of an opera company playing at the Payret Theatre; subsequently the disease attacked an electrician employed in the same building. All of the other cases have originated in this vicinity, and this gives color to the theory that the mosquitoes from New Orleans carried the infection."

HYDE MAKES DISCLOSURES

Former Vice-President of the Equitable Life on the Witness Stand.

TELLS OF "YELLOW DOG" FUND

Testifies Against E. H. Harriman, H. C. Frick, B. B. Odell, Jr., and Others Promident in the Financial and Political World-His Aspirations to Become

Our French Ambassador.

New York City.-By far the most sensational testimony in the legislative investigation of insurance methods was that given by James Hazen Hyde, the former Vice-President of the Equitable Life Assurance Society. Mr. Hyde was disposed for several months to remain outside the State of New York, but a threat of indictment by Mr. Hughes brought him within the jurisdiction of the Legislature. Hyde, it was agreed by everybody, made the most self-possessed witness seen up to this time in the inquiry. He never lost his temper, nor did he lose track of the most involved questions by Mr. Hughes.. His answers seemed to be frank, and at times there was a play of wit between Mr. Hyde and the chief counsel which brought animation to the proceedings.

In the early day Hyde attracted the interest of everybody by explaining the several accounts in the "yellow dog" fund and admitting that out of the famous $685,000, $50,000 had been paid to Cornelius N. Bliss for the last National campaign, Mr. Bliss being at that time a director in the Equitable. Hyde followed this by flatly contradicting the testimony Schiff in relation to the Union Pacific blind pool. He asserted positively that Schiff and Harriman always knew that the Equitable was a direct participant, and that Mr. Schiff must have known, as his son did, that all the checks were signed on behalf of the Equitable.

The climax to Hyde's sensational testimony came late in the afternoon, when he testified that Chairman B. B. Odell, Jr., had received $75,000 through the Mercantile Trust Company as a settlement for whatever losses he had incurred in the purchase of Shipbuilding bonds. Hyde asserted that this money was paid because the Equitable Society feared the charter of the Mercantile Trust Company would be taken away by legislation in Albany.

Mr. Hyde testified that the man who brought to him the intimation that the charter of the company would be revoked in Albany unless the Mercantile Trust made good in part, at least, the losses of the former Governor was Mr. Odell's close personal and political friend, E. H. Harriman, President of the Union Pacific Railway Company, director of the Equitable Life Assurance Society and director of the Mercantile Trust Company. Harriman, Hyde said, after reciting the sinister consequences which might follow refusal to settle with Mr. Odell, advised that such settlement should be made without delay.

Confronted by Harriman's threats and acting upon the advice of counsel, the witness asserted, the officials of the Mercantile Trust Company settled with Mr. Odell for $75,000 to recompense him in part for losses suffered on $180,000 of Shipbuilding bonds which he held. In fact, Hyde said, that as an earnest of the alleged threat a bill had been drawn in Alabny to repeal the charter of the Mercantile Trust Com-

Hyde was on the witness stand all day, and no more composed witness has been before the committee since the insurance investigation was be-His friends thought he would be disconcerted by the crowd which filled every available spot in the Council Chamber to see and to hear him, but he was not. He answered clearly and distinctly, manifested a disposition to argue questions with Mr. Hughes, which the latter was compelled to re press repeatedly, and never lost an opportunity to throw hot shot into E. H. Harriman, Henry C. Frick, James W. Alexander and other men who, he said, had joined in what he termed "the conspiracy" to drive him out of the Equitable Life. Hyde said that the sale of his controlling stock interest in the society to Thomas F. Ryan was absolute and that he received the certified check of Ryan In payment therefor. He denied that there was any agreement that he should take back the stock at some future time and return to Ryan file money.

The witness admitted frankly that he had aspired to be appointed Amerlean Ambassador to France. He said it had been suggested to him at a dinner by E. H. Harriman, and that Jacob H. Schiff, Henry-C. Frick and Senator Depew and others had used their friendly offices in his behalf. Hyde also said he had gone to Washington alone to see what his chances of appointment were.

"Mr. Frick was the active agent interested in my behalf," he said sarcastically, "and Mt. Harriman used his

COSTS MORE TO LIVE NOW

Dun's Review Shows That New Yorkers Pay High Frices.

Expenses Exceed, by Twenty Per Cent. Any Record Ever Made-Burden Heaviest Upon Poor.

New York City.-The cost of living in New York City is higher to-day than it has been since 1880, not counting rents. If rents are considered, living is more expensive than it has ever been, and exceeds by over twenty per cent. any record ever made. Meats and general groceries are higher than during the panic prices of the Spanish War time. Vegetables of all kinds are too high to be bought by the poorest class of consumers. Rents are ten to twenty-five per cent. higher than a year ago, although the real estate men then thought that high tide had been reached and that suburban extension would lower rents rather than raise them. These are a few of the facts shown by recent figures compiled by the statistician of the Department of the Interior. Dun's Review gives the same general results boiled down into what it designates as "Dun's Index Figure," which is now 103.853, or nearly forty per cent, higher than a year before the Spanish War, from which all authorities date the period of high The burden, according to the figures, falls heaviest upon those least able to bear it. The very poor are forced to pay nearly twenty-five per cent. more for their meat, and forty per cent. more for their potatoes than before. Their rent has advanced from twenty to thirty per cent. for apartments in the lower East Side and ten to twenty per cent. in the upper East Side. On the West Side rents have advanced about twenty-five per cent, on moderate-priced tenements, and on those of higher price the advance is smaller. The manager of the largest renting concern in the city said: "We are powerless to control rentals, and they have steadily gone up. An apartment that could be rented for $35 last year is easily placed now at $45, with slight concessions that make the figure about $42.50. All of our last year $400 apartments are rented this year for $480, while the $1200 to $2500 list shows a uniform advance of ten per cent. The list above $2500 shows slight advances, but nothing like so much. The poorer class of storekeep ers have had to pay about thirty per cent, more this year. The poor man gets it in the neck every time, and the rich man is hurt very little."

The manager of one of the largest wholesale and retail grocery houses in the city said: "Tomatoes have gone up $1 per dozen-gallon cans in the last month, and fruits are so high that packers are using two and one-half pound cans instead of three pound cans, and packng them light in order to keep the quotations down to living figures. The public would not buy if the cans were packed as they were a year ago and sold at proportionate price. We simply have to do it.

'Hams and bacon, the best, are selling at twenty to twenty-four cents, four cents above the price of a short time ago, and even the poorest qualities of hog products are three and four cents higher. All dried meats and fish are higher. Codfish that could be bought from four to six cents per pound is held at six to seven and a half cents and taken readily at the advance. Beans that were $1.40 nov mand $1.85 per bushel. Flour is fifty to eighty cents per barrel higher on wholesale quotations, and that means that Mrs. Jones, who buys a quarter's worth, pays half a cent a pound more. The same thing may be said of all the cereal products in the raw state, and the loaf of bread is lighter now than ever before for the money.'

The biggest dealer in dried vegetables, such as potatoes, beets, turnips, cabbage, etc., said: "Potatoes are way up, $2.25 to $3.50 per barrel, according to quality and place of purchase, with no relief in sight. At this rate the poor woman who buys from the huckster or grocer by the 'small basket' pays about $2 per bushel, and the better class, who buy by the bushel, have to pay $1.50 on the average. Apples are all the way from $2.50 for a poor quality to $8 for extra stock, and some of the fine Western stock brings $6 a small box. The figures are proportionately high on everything, with the possible exception of cabbage, and they are high enough."

CONEY WELCOMES TARS

British and American Sailors Make Merry at Famous Resort

Prince Louis and Admiral Evans Presen -Vaudeville Performance Adds

to the Festivities.

New York City.-Joining in international revelry, the enlisted men of the First United States squadron of the North Atlantic fleet and the men of the visiting British fleet took possession of Coney Island, turned the place inside out and back again, vowed eternal friendship to one another and the pext moment boasted of prowess until only a mill could settle it-with policemen smiling the other way all the time.

It was the most remarkable international feast ever given, and graced as it was by the presence in the early part of the evening by Prince Louis, Admiral Evans and most of their staffs, it took added significance. Twenty-six hundred lusty-lunged tars greeted the coming of their officers, waited impatiently for them to depart and finally became almost violently demonstrative when the officers marched from the hall, leaving the enlisted men to indulge in sundry love pats among themselves.

Before going to the banquet of the sailors, Prince Louis spoke at a dinner given him by the Chamber of Commerce. After leaving Coney Island he visited the Horse Show in Madison Square Garden and then attended the "gambol" in the Lambs Club. Before retiring he spent a short time at the ball given by the warrant officers of the British ships and the non-commissioned men of the American vessels, on board the Drake.

To say that Coney Island took kindly to the sailor lads is putting it mildly It opened its arms-usually cold this time of year-in wide embrace to the boys with nothing to do but spend money, and by midnight it was predicted that it would be worth a man's life to display car fare back to the city in the morning. The men simply let themselves foose and made merry with all the traditional jollity of the sailor. Both American and British tars vowed it was the most glorious night in the the history of the two navies. The Britishers and Americans left of the big vessels of the Iron Steamboat Company and sailed down the bay to Coney Island. On the way the Americans regaled their brethren from across the sea with a rollicking chorus. After landing in Coney Island, the men, headed by a large police guard. marched to Stauch's pavilion, in the Bowery, where dinner was prepared.

After the arrival of Prince Louis and their ships in the afternoon in three

Admiral Evans and their uniformed staffs the sight inside of the hall was an impressive and interesting one. The American and British sailors, mixed indiscriminately, sat at long rows of tables and on the balconies. while the officers of the fleets sat in front. The hall was decorated with long streamers of American and British flags, and all the Britishers had American flags pinned to their coats. while the Americans wore the emblem of Great Britain. As Prince Louis and Admiral Evans marched up the long row to the head of the table reserve for the officers the band played "God Save the King." The men rose and let out a cheer that made those of the biggest political meets ever held in this city seem like the tooting of a single fog horn. It was a cheer propelled by thousands of the stoutest lungs at can be found in the world. seemed as if each lung had been especially trained for the purpose.

Battenberg and Admiral Evans and their staffs left Correy Island at 8.26. A vaudeville entertainment was pro vided, but the sailors refused to let the performers do their regular acts. It was outside of the place, however that the men enjoyed themselves most Coney Island-or that part of it which is open all year-was prepared for the boys in blue. Men and women were singing patriotic airs to lure the sailors within, and once they passed the portals of any of the resorts they had a difficult time getting out. All of the men seemed to have bills of large denomination and they spent their money

Now Sizes in Shoes.

As a connecting link uniting, as it were, ready-made with custom-measure shoes and men's apparel, some stock manufacturing houses have introduced within a short time quarter sizes in shoes and half sizes in clothing. Never before have these innovations been tried in ready-made lines of these branches of business. This departure means that the retailer will be compelled to carry a considerably larger assortment than formerly. But thinking dealers now wonder why such a scale was not thought of before—the same as applies to hats. Quarter and threequarter sizes in men's collars are today made by several firms catering to counter trade. The average style in coat-shape stock shirts is nowadays cut so that the band calls for the same size in collar instead of the latter being a half size bigger, as used to be the case.-New York Press.

Amateur lieform. The mission workers on the East Side frequently see the humorous as well as the sadder side of life. A man prominent in reform work recounts the experience of a certain young woman, new to the task, who set about posting herself as to conditions in a neighborhood near Avenue A.

The ambitious missionary had entered the house of an Irishwoman, and had made some preliminary inquirles, when she was suddenly interrupted by the woman, who said: "Say, youse is fresh at dis bustness, ain't youse:"

An Englishman who was out West in early days fell in with a long train of prairie schooners, the leader of which announced that-he and his fellow-emigrants were going to found a town, having everything that was needful and nothing that was unnecessary. "We won't have any waste," he said; "there isn't a person in our party who won't do some important duty in the new town." The Englishman pointed to an old and feeble man with a bent back and a long, thin, white beard. "But that very old man there," he said; "he can't possibly be of any use, can he?" "Oh, yes," said.

"Didn't Wear 'Em Then." During a summer sojourn in the mountains, a physician who is much interested in epilepsy in its different forms, heard of a woman with that disease who had lived to the age of seventy-nine years. Curious to know, the details of so unusual a case, he interviewed the widower. Having inquired concerning different symptoms he proceeded: "Did she grind her teeth much at night?" The old man considered for a minute, and then replied: Well, I dunno as she wore 'em at

FROM TEXAS. Some Coffee Facis From the Lone Star State.

From a beautiful farm down in Texas, where gushing springs unite to form babbling brooks that wind their sparkling way through flowery meads, comes a note of gratitude for delivery, from the coffee habit.

"When my baby boy came to me five years ago I began to drink Postum Food Coffee, having a feeling that it would be better for him and me than the old kind of drug-laden coffee. I was not disappointed in it, for it enabled me, a small, delicate woman, to nurse a bouncing healthy baby 14 mouths.

"I have since continued the use of Postum, for I have grown fond of it, and have discovered to my joy that it has entirely relieved me of a billious habit which used to prostrate me two or three times a year, causing muq discomfort to my family and suffering to myself. "My brother-in-law was cured of chronic constipation by leaving off the old kind of coffee and using Postum. He has become even more fond of it than he was of the old coffee. "In fact, the entire family, from the latest arrival (a 2-year-old, who always morning), up to the head of the house, think there is no drink so good or so wholesome as Postum." Name giver by Postum Co., Battle Creek, Mich There's a reason. Read the little book "The I
